

140 YEARS AGO

CURLING IN WINDSOR dates back to 1877 in the budding downtown on 2 sheets of open ice.

In 1898 the Windsor Curling Club officially incorporated and built the first covered rink at Wyandotte and Ouellette. The first curling building followed in 1914 located at 24 Wyandotte St. E., and by 1924 the first gas-fired compressors were invented, used to chill refrigerant making artificial ice possible. With the war years and depression the Club folded but was resurrected in 1954 in the Windsor Ice House located at Shepherd and Mercer.

In 1962 the Club reorganized and built a 6 sheet curling facility on Central Ave. which tragically was struck by a tornado in April of 1974, taking the lives of 9 local curlers.

In 1979 there was another milestone for curling in Windsor with the opening of the new clubhouse at the Roseland Golf Course, including 6 sheets of ice. The Windsor Curling Club eventually found their way to the Roseland where members today play as The Seniors Association. Thousands of curlers have placed their feet in the hack, slid down the sheet past the hog line, delivering the stone with skillful sweeping into the house.

A GOLF MINUTE

ROSELAND GOLF COURSE is a designated Ontario Heritage Site. In 1926, businessman Harry Neal, of the Neal Baking Co., hired golf course architect Donald J. Ross to design the course. Ross served an apprenticeship with Old Tom Morris in St. Andrews before investing his life savings in a trip to the U.S. in 1899 at the suggestion of a Harvard professor named Robert Wilson. It was Wilson who found Ross his first job in America at Oakley Country Club in Watertown, Massachusetts.

DONALD JAMES ROSS
1872-1948 Golf Course Architect

In 1900 he was appointed as the golf professional at the Pinehurst Resort in North Carolina, where he began his course design career and eventually designed over four hundred courses.

Roseland remains true to its Ross heritage and has hosted many professional and amateur events. We are most pleased to be the home of Canada's longest running junior golf tournament, The Essex Kent Junior Boys, which has been running continuously since 1928.
