Literacy Corner

Playing with Chalk

There is a lot you can do with something as simple as sidewalk chalk to help children develop early literacy, fine motor, and gross motor skills.

You might enjoy:

- Playing hopscotch while you practice counting
- Writing your names as small and as big as you can
- Spelling new words
- Designing an obstacle course
- Drawing shapes or a character from your favourite book
- Making a road for your toy vehicles

Activities Online and At Home

FEATURED ACTIVITY:

Sun Melting Experiment

WHAT YOU WILL NEED:

- Muffin tray
- Materials around the house (rock, Lego, ice cube, bar of soap, wooden block, birthday candle, crayons, butter, cheese, chocolate)

WHAT TO DO:

1. Ask your children to help choose items they think may, or may not, melt in the sun.
2. Fill the muffin tray with an assortment of objects of your choice.
3. Head outside and place your tray in the sun.
4. Take a look at your items throughout the day. Take a picture of the items each time you check on them. Compare the pictures and talk about the changes you notice.
5. What melted in the sun?

EarlyON Science: Giant Bubble Solution

This video will teach families how to make the perfect bubble solution. How big of a bubble can you make? Tag us in your pictures #weearlyon
